The following guidelines are designed to aid the Serials Librarian in determining the proper disposition of journal supplements.

- Supplements which have a separate numbering scheme (e.g. Acta Physiologica, Scandinavica, Supplement) shall be cataloged as a separate journal from the parent journal.

The following applies to supplements which do not have a separate number scheme:

- Supplements paginated in the parent journal’s pagination sequence shall be bound with the parent journal.
- Supplements which have their own pagination sequence and contain only abstracts of papers shall be cataloged separately as a book.
- Supplements which contain articles indexed in Index Medicus under the name of the parent journal shall be bound with the journal. If desired, these supplements can be given separate cataloging under the journal’s call number.
- An exception to all of the above rules is that the paper copy of any supplement which is duplicated in the microfilm copy of a journal can be cataloged separately as a book if desired.
